Milk With Vitamin D Often Cures Rickets

This is the last of three articles by Dr. Fishbein on milk, the great advance made in safeguarding it for health, its condensation, modification, and food value.

Tests made with various milk modifications under controlled conditions in various institutions for the care of children show that the regular feeding of children with milk containing vitamin D developed by any of the processes mentioned in the previous article will successfully prevent rickets and serve to cure in a considerable number of cases.

However, some of the products take much longer to bring about a satisfactory result than do others. Furthermore, it is not safe for the average person confronted with a diagnosis of rickets in a child to endeavor to cure the case himself by giving inordinate quantities of irradiated milk.

Even in cases of rickets of relative severity, cure can be obtained much more quickly and satisfactorily by use of potent drugs of vitamin D and also by use of direct application of ultraviolet rays to the skin, causing the skin itself to produce the vitamin D necessary for the human body in the manner in which nature does the work through action of the sun's rays on the naked skin.

Thus milk today is a much more complicated substance than it used to be. Its proper use involves an understanding of its composition, an understanding of the numerous laws regulating its production, and an understanding of the specific purposes for which it is to be used.

Various governmental agencies which have given attention to the matter find that all the different forms in which milk is produced have special usefulness according to their nature and composition.

Under the Emergency Relief Administration, the use of evaporated milk has been particularly recommended because it is always obtainable in a safe form at reasonably low cost.

Investigations carried on in various laboratories have shown that the vitamins poured on milk by nutritional authorities are well warranted. The production and distribution of milk and milk products is today one of the largest industries, if not the largest, in the United States.

It is wise to bear in mind the advice of the experts in nutrition that every person should have from a pint to a quart of milk daily, whether taken in the form of fresh milk or in the form of various milk products and concoctions.

A BOOK A DAY

By BRUCE CATTION
Tells of Chaplin's Debut in Film Land—Fowler's Book on Sennett Is Full of Odd Tales

Charlie Chaplin copied his world-famous walk from an English cripple—a man who, unbelievably, had been given the job of teaching crippled children how to walk and run!

Chaplin was scared to death when he first entered the movies. Instead of his now familiar baggy pants, floppy shoes, and dented hat, he wore an old-time Desperate Desmond make-up—and made such a poor impression that he almost dropped out of the films entirely.

These are just a few of the entertaining bits of news in "The Story of Max Sennett," a zealous and hilarious biography by Gene Fowler.

Sennett began his career as a boilermaker. His ambition was to be a grand opera star. The fate which landed him, instead, in Hollywood and made him, the comedy king of film-land was an exceedingly odd one, and Mr. Fowler describes it with all that delight in anecdote and love for exotic personalities which made "Timber Line" such a readable book.

He takes an almost fiendish glee in telling how Sennett, becoming a big shot, had an eight-foot bathtub installed in his office, and did much of his work while immersed in its soothing waters.

His account of the early days of Sennett comedies—the days of frenzied chases, Keystone cops, and pie-throwing (they were blackberry pies, not custard, by the way)—is immensely entertaining.

Besides giving a three-dimension portrait of Sennett, he gives interesting sidelights on many other Hollywood stars, and sheds a lot of new light on film-land's infancy.

Published by Covici-Friede, his book sells at $3.

Praise Can Be Used as Incentive to Child

Business offices adopt different methods for getting more and better work out of their employees.

Some use the big stick, dock for tardiness, accept no excuse for mistakes and no matter how well the work is done, complain that it should be better.

Some few others go to the opposite extreme. They rely on happiness to turn out the goods. "A clerk or stenographer can work better if encouraged by praise in spite of mistakes," is the motto. Such a system usually is discarded after the new boss gets in.

It is an interesting survey, the different tactics adopted by the industrial and business world to get the maximum of effort. Interesting because they differ so widely.

It is the second method we shall have to concentrate on, not in business, but at home and at school.

Praise or Not to Praise

Just when can we praise children without damage? Should they be praised when they don't deserve it?

It is well known that the power of suggestion and praise are most potent when a child is three, four, or five years old. Even when he gets no results and his staggering attempts to do things seem ridiculous to us, the effort is the thing that counts. We have to encourage effort and pride even when we know the child is not doing his very best.

But there comes a time when we can reasonably expect better things, within his powers of course. And as his fingers become more nimble, his wits too. He gradually develops a sense of distinction between his best effort and carelessness. Is it right, then, to continue our praising just to encourage him? If he copies four words wrong out of his speller, is the teacher gaining a point in character development by praising the ones he put down right and excusing the others?

Must Ring True

Is his mother's handling his pride in himself by saying he was a good boy to put one skate away while the other is out on the porch for some one to fall over?

Nobody will sense the sham half so quickly as the child himself. Praise should be honest.

Personally I believe we are too chary of praise, and follow too closely in the footsteps of the Scrooges who drive too hard and complain that nothing is ever right.

Such tactics are certainly not conducive to effort. But on the other hand no human being wants too much commendation undeserved.

Children should be lauded for attempt as well as result when the attempt is their best.

Praise and criticism balance each other. Both should be fair and honest.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Like Hair, Nails Need Brushing For Beauty

A few seem to realize it, but there's a special technique in using a nail brush. Once you get into the habit of doing it correctly, you'll be amazed at the improvement in the appearance of your hands and at the way your nails retain liquid polish.

After removing old polish, take a small bowl of warm soapy water and begin scrubbing. Push your finger tips down into the bristles and rub the brush back and forth. Treat the thumbs separately.

'Come On—Eat Your Sunshine Vitamins'

Then, using the brush as you would a buffer, scour the tops of the nails, softening the cuticle and removing minor stains. Major stains can be taken off with a bit of lemon juice. If you have callouses, smooth them down with a piece of pumice.

Now, with circular movements, brush each nail again. You'll notice that this step removes more dead cuticle and gives the fingers a suave, well-groomed look. Rinse your hands, pushing cuticle back with the towel. If the little white moons still don't show, dip a cotton-wrapped orange-slick in cuticle remover and gently move it around the edge of each nail. Rinse again and your nails are ready for liquid polish in your favorite shade.

Remember that the right nail brush is just as important as a good file, an orange-slick and a polish that doesn't change color once you get it on. It should be rather small, easy to hold in the hand and composed of flexible bristles, spaced rather far apart.

The Clew of the Forgotten Murder

by CARLETON KENDRAKE

©1934 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

When CHARLES MORDEN, reporter for The Blade, is found dead DAN BLEEKER, publisher, employs SIDNEY GRIFF, famous criminologist, to solve the murder.

Morden had been investigating the affairs of FRANK B. CATHAY, wealthy and prominent following the arrest of an impostor claiming to be Cathay and accompanied by a girl called MARY DUFFY.

The day following Morden's death Griff tries to locate the apartment of ALICE LORTON who has reported the disappearance of her roommate, ESTHER ORDWAY. Griff questions Alice and instructs detectives to shadow her.

Griff and Bleeker go to the apartment occupied by KENNETH BOONE, friend of Alice's. Alice is there. Griff tells Bleeker she is Cathay's daughter. He accuses her of killing Morden, and calls police headquarters.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXX

SIDNEY GRIFF emerged from the row of telephone booths and waited impatiently until Bleeker came from an adjoining booth.

"Have you found out anything?" he asked.

Bleeker nodded, his face grimly purposeful.

"Racine," he said, "the detective, has located the Malone woman—that is, we think it's the Malone woman, although she's not going under that name right at present. She's located at 922 East Elm street and is going under the name of Blanche Stanway. Evidently Racine found out about her earlier in the day and kept his information under cover, because he went to the Palace hotel and waited there for 15 minutes. At the end of that time a woman joined him. From the description, I gather that it's Mrs. Frank B. Cathay. Together, they went to call on Blanche Stanway. They're still there."

Sidney Griff frowned meditatively.

"We'll go there first," he said. "Detectives who are working for me have located Mary Briggs, the hitchhiker. Naturally, she's important, but she's not as important as the Malone woman."

"Just who," asked Bleeker, "do you figure this Malone woman is?"

"That," Griff told him, "is something that remains to be determined. So far, I am working in this case on a theory and only on a theory."

"But you think it's going to check out?"

"It is checking out," Griff said.

"What's the theory?"

"In every case," Griff told him, "there's some key-clew—something that dominates all of the other clews—something that points directly to the motive for the crime and the manner of its execution, as well as identity of its perpetrator. The key clew in this case was the counterfeit crook."

"The counterfeit crook?" Bleeker asked. "Who do you mean?"

"The man who posed as the pick-pocket, who had Cathay's wallet, driving licenses and credentials."

"Why do you say he couldn't have been a crook?" Bleeker asked.

"OBSERVE carefully," Griff told him. "I do not say the man is not a crook. I say that he was a counterfeit crook.

"He gave a very fair imitation of Cathay's signature at the police station. He gave a fairly accurate imitation of Cathay's signature when he registered at the hotel."

"He might have been a forger," Bleeker pointed out.

"Those things," Griff said, "take practice. But mark you, here is the most significant thing of all. He cashes a check at the hotel where he is registered under the name of Frank B. Cathay, and that check passed through the bank at River side. Moreover, he went to the hotel to keep an appointment with Harry Fancher, an inventor. That appointment had been made in advance."

"Therefore, this pocket-picking was no casual lifting of a purse. It was a part of a carefully planned scheme, a scheme which would have worked to perfection if the man hadn't taken a couple of drinks. He was stopped for a minor traffic violation. The officer smelled liquor on his breath and found that his description checked with that of a man who had been holding up service stations. The officer took him to the station for examination."

"However, we're wasting valuable time talking over clews while there's work to be done, so let's get to work."

"But look here," Bleeker demanded, "you don't have any doubt that Kenneth Boone and the girl, between them, were the ones who killed Morden, do you?"

"As to that, Griff said, "we are going to make some interesting and I think some rather startling discoveries. Come, let's see if we can't get to 922 East Elm street before the conference breaks up. It may be a conference that is worthy of our careful attention."

MUCH puzzled, Bleeker followed the criminologist to a taxicab. "Remember," he said, when the cab was swaying through the streets, making speed toward the destination where the detective and the widow of the Riverview financier had been located, "that I'm running a newspaper. I'm a man of action. I don't go in for a lot of refined theories; I go in for action. The faster the action, the better I like it. I'm inclined to go ahead and do what I want to first and check up on the mistakes afterwards. I find that I can get a destination quicker by moving around and doing things than I can by sitting down and waiting for things to happen. Morden was a newspaper man. He was a good one. He had a knowledge of crime and of criminals which he had obtained by first-hand observation. He was murdered. I want to prosecute those murderers. You've got the newspaper standing squarely behind you."

They rode for a minute or two in silence and then Griff said sadly, "It will be one of my greatest regrets that in solving this case there is one thing which we shall probably never discover."

"What is that?" Bleeker inquired.

"That is whether Morden merely blundered upon the discovery which led to his death, or whether he figured it out by a process of reasoning that was at least brilliant."

"He was not a brilliant man," Bleeker said.

GRIFF closed his eyes. Slowly he shook his head from side to side.

"I am not certain," he said. "At times I feel that he must have been brilliant. It is, perhaps, something we shall never discover."

"What are you referring to?" Bleeker asked. "The location of Esther Ordway?"

"Not that," Griff said.

"Do you think that he knew she was Cathay's daughter?"

"As to that, we cannot say, but I am inclined to think he did not," Griff said.

"How," asked Bleeker, "did you know that she was Cathay's daughter?"

"I didn't know," Griff said. "I watched her lips when she spoke. I knew that she was nervous and that she was lying. I knew, also, that her lies were not the swift extemporaneous lies of one who has been unexpectedly cornered, but that they had been carefully rehearsed. They were lies which were not impregnable, but they had been given to her to use for the purpose of delaying investigation until a certain thing could be accomplished."

"And that certain thing?" asked Bleeker.

GRIFF shrugged his shoulders. "It may already have been accomplished," he said. "Who can tell?"

"Don't you think you're all wet on that business?" Bleeker insisted.

"Morden wasn't such a brainy man. He was resourceful. He thought of trying to trace Cathay through his car. He found the garage. In some way, from the garage, he got a lead to the apartment house and someone in the apartment house gave him the information that he wanted. He, therefore, thought this young woman was merely a woman in the case, a person whose name might be linked with that of Cathay."

"He went to see her; she was out. He rode around, investigating other clews for an hour or so, and then returned. She was in. He talked with her. Kenneth Boone came in. Boone has a jealous disposition. He is hot-headed and impulsive. We know he carries a weapon. Probably he tried to throw Morden out. Morden would have taken a great deal of throwing out. There was a struggle. Boone lost his head and hit Morden over the head with the gun. That's all there was to it."

GRIFF did not argue the point. "Perhaps," he said in a tone that was almost dreamy, "but let's not make the mistake of reconstructing our crime until we have all of the facts. Here's 922 East Elm street. We're going to get something here."

(To Be Continued)

GRIFF and BLEEKER invade a conference in the next installment—and face an angry woman.

Insull Completes Story From Stand

Banker Describes Ex-Utility Czar as Man of "Highest Integrity"

CHICAGO. (AP)—Samuel Insull bowed off the Insull trial stage Monday, leaving it to the 16 associates accused with him in defrauding investors.

The spotlight then swung to Insull's investment bankers, Clarence T. MacNeille took the stand with the claim that Halsey, Stuart & Co. gave Insull's Corporation Securities Company a $11,000,000 boost when it began its career in 1920.

MacNeille created a stir when he stood up, in the midst of routine testimony, to declare his opinion of Insull.

"My opinion of Samuel Insull's business integrity is the highest I ever had of any man," said MacNeille, "except H. L. Stuart."

Stuart is president of Halsey, Stuart & Co. and a defendant.

"That was grossly irregular," cried Assistant Attorney General Leslie Salter as prosecutors shouted their objections.

Before he left the witness chair, pausing to bow to the jurors, Insull spent 30 final minutes in fencing with Salter. Defendant in his earlier cross-examination, Insull lost a battle over a $4,500,000 security deed the prosecution charges was concealed, back in 1920.

MacNeille, second of the 17 defendants to testify in the mail fraud trial, told how Halsey, Stuart & Co. came to join forces with Insull. He served as an officer of both the investment banking house and Insull's Corporation Securities Company and is one of the four Halsey, Stuart officials accused with Insull.

Sauce for One Pudding Isn't Sauce For All Puddings

What's sauce for the pudding varies so greatly according to the pudding itself that I can't help feeling the beginning of the hot dessert season to be an appropriate time for a piece on the whole subject.

The mission of sauce is to enhance and supply any lack in the pudding. It follows then, that a baked pudding with a tendency to dryness should be

Tomorrow's Menu

Breakfast: Stewed figs, cereal, cream, tomato toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon: Scalloped macaroni and oysters, hearts of celery, graham bread, baked apples with whipped cream, milk, tea.

Dinner: Steamed halibut with parsley sauce, scalloped eggplant, baked squash, grapefruit and orange salad, Cumberland pudding with hard sauce, milk, coffee.

Served with a liquid garnish. Standard cream is an excellent liquid sauce of moderate richness that is suitable for puddings of pronounced flavor. Cooked sauces thickened with eggs supply food value and are usually served with chilled desserts.

Hard sauce, that rich concoction made of creamed butter and either white or brown sugar, is good with hot puddings if they are not too rich.

"Nun's Butter" is a form of hard sauce, less rich and heavy because less butter is used and cream is added for fluffiness.

Rich sweet puddings are best served with liquid sauces and a little whipped cream.

Flavorings should be added to hot sauces after they are thoroughly cooked and just before serving so that none of the taste is lost.

Remember, too, that the rule for thorough cooking of starches holds good in pudding sauces. If a sauce is thickened with flour or cornstarch, it must be well cooked to make it palatable and digestible.

Lemon Sauce

This is good with hot puddings of cake-like consistency and fruit toppings.

Two cups granulated sugar, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 1/2 cup boiling water, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 lemon, few grains salt.

Mix sugar and cornstarch. Add boiling water slowly, stirring constantly. Bring to the boiling point and stir and cook for fifteen minutes. Remove from fire and add butter, grated rinds and juice of lemon, serve hot.

Fennel Sauce

This always is good with steamed puddings.

One-half cup butter, 1 cup powdered sugar, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Cream butter in top of double boiler or over warm water. Gradually add sugar, beating constantly. Add egg, well beaten and beat over hot water until foamy. Remove from heat and beat in vanilla. Serve at once.

COLUMBUS, Ohio — (AP) — Senator

can who asked re-election to the United States Senate "to expose the Socialism of the Roosevelt administration," pulled to within challenging distance of Democratic Vic Donahey
Tuesday night at 8:48 of Ohio's 8,559 precincts reported their votes. The vote:

Donahey 110,159
Fess 72,408

As Fess closed some of the gap that earlier had separated him from Dona-hey, who gave with reservations his endorsement of the New Deal, other Republican candidates also showed greater strength.

Charles J. Brown, Republican candidate for governor, was within about 10,000 votes of Martin L. Davey, the Kent tree surgeon who carried the Democratic banner.

Where Fess in the first returns
trailing by almost two to one behind Donahey, by 10:15 p. m. his vote was running less than two ballots to each third cast for Donahey.

One of the largest, if not the largest,

Robt. Montgomery Comes to Local Screen on Thursday

"Hide-Out," the picture that comes Thursday and Friday to the Saenger Theatre, is one of those rare entertainments you like to see often but don't see often enough.
It is the story of the reformation of a jolly playboy-racketeer through his unwilling precipitation into the midst of a rural atmosphere.
Robert Montgomery plays one of his most whimsical roles as "Lucky" Wilson, the racketeer who, driven from his favored New York haunts by the relentlessness of the law, realizes he has not discovered life and love until he finds himself nesting in the bosom
of a simple farmer's family.

Maureen O'Sullivan, and other favorites are in support.

A new and indescribable thrill in screen entertainment awaits motion picture audiences who will see "One Night of Love," starring the gorgeous, glamorous, golden-voiced Grace
Moore, which opens at the Saenger
theatre for a three day engagement, next Sunday.

Miss Moore, known in every city in the world where she has appeared on the operatic and the concert stage, achieves the glorious heights of screen
stardom as a result of her superb dramatic portrayal in this glorious musical extravaganza.

The vote 5,839 out of 8,931 precincts,

lar lead over his Republican opponent, former Mayor Stephen Dug-

New Yorkers voted in unusually heavy numbers for an off-year elec-spread disorders many times in the past, the election was the most orderly in years.

vention ever to be held, said Mr. Sis-son. Also, one of the most extensive programs in the organizations history was prepared during this session.

Mr. Sisson discussed briefly the full time set up in the state department on child welfare work. This is one of the Legion's most necessary departments, he said.

This year's program, the speaker stated, includes everything that is possible to be done for the disabled veteran, and during 1935 those disabled "buddies" will receive first consideration from that department of the organization.

The speaker spoke at some length
on the so-called bonus, or the balance due veterans on their adjusted service certificates. This subject was widely discussed by the executive committee at the national convention, he said, and the drafting committee worked for days on a plan to be introduced at the next meeting of congress, at which time immediate payment of the bonus will be asked.

Success in any organization lies in membership, Mr. Sisson said. This year, more than ever before the American Legion needs members and the members need the Legion. The speaker urged that the local post exert every effort to secure as large a membership as possible. The quota for the local post is 158 members. It is estimated that there are approximately 400 eligible for membership in the Legion in Hempstead county. The membership committee and individual workers for members were commended by Mr. Sisson for the work already done in the past few days on this membership drive. Something like 100 membership cards were turned over to Mr. Sisson Tuesday night.

Others speaking Tuesday night were O. W. Williams, commander of the local post, and E. F. McFaddin.

Arkansas to Face Rice on Saturday

Razorbacks Drilling for Most Powerful Owl Team in History

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—Determined to knock the Rice Owls off the top perch of the Southwest conference,
the Arkansas Razorbacks are this week going through the most strenuous practice sessions of the season in preparation for Saturday's homecoming game between the two conference leaders.

Unable to match the Owls' backfield power, the Razorbacks are concentrating on their pass defense and some new trick plays that Coach Thomson handed out yesterday. Thomson is confident that the veteran Arkansas sline can hold its own with the Rice forward wall and stop the Owls'
running attack, but the Razorbacks have shown a weakness in pass defense which Thomson is trying hard to correct before the championship game Saturday.

A couple of new intricate reverses
and spread formations were tried out against the freshmen today and resulted in substantial gains for the varsity. Rucker, Criswell and Geiser showed to good advantage in carrying the ball, and with either LaForge or Jordan will form the Arkansas backfield against Rice.

The two Arkansas quarterbacks, La-Forge and Jordan, were injured in the Missouri Mines game and did not play against the Texas Aggies in last Saturday's game at College Station
when the Aggies got a last-minute tie with the Razorbacks. The loss of both of his regular quarterbacks forced Thomson to shift Geiser to quarterback. However, both LaForge and Jordan will be ready to go against Rice next Saturday.

Charles Black, senior guard who suffered a broken finger early in the season, has not yet returned to practice. The Arkansas line against Rice will have Jack Newby at center, Spivey and Messel at guard, Captain Benton and Haden at tackle, and Rucker and Luke at the ends. Howell and Poole are available for reserve duty at the ends and Edison, VanSickle, Henderson, Sheridan and Lundy will probably see duty in the line.

While the Razorback line has given an excellent account of itself defensively, Thomson is not satisfied with the work of his line on offense. He believes that his hard charging forwards should be able to open holes
more consistently for such light fast backs as LaForge, Geiser, Jeffries and Martin. These boys can see their way once they get in the open. Consequently, Thomson has told his linemen that they will not only have to stop the Owls' attack, but will have to help get the Razorback speedsters into the clear.

Information from Houston that the Rice band and students will follow
the team to Fayetteville has worked up interest in the homecoming game to fever pitch. Arkansas students are planning the year's biggest pep rally

For days...for weeks...yes, for months, you'll still remember these 3 wonderful dates...

Men Presume on God, Says Speaker

Mrs. Beasley Preaches on Story of the Wedding Feast

The Rev. Mrs. Beasley preached
Tuesday night from Jeremiah 13:21—
"What wilt thou say when He punishes thee?" and the parable in Matt.
22, about the man who appeared at the wedding feast without having the wedding garment on.

Some of the high points of her message follows.

"Excuses will not stand in the presence of God.

"The most difficult thing God ever did was to break a human will. The trouble with folks who say that they cannot live right is that they just won't give up some pet sin.

"Some people seem to forget that "Whatever you sow that shall you also reap."

"The reason that folks don't get anywhere in their Christian experience is that they try to hold on to God with one hand and on to sin
and the world with the other.

"God is a God of love, but also a God of severity. 'The soul that sinneth it shall die.' When God's love is turned to anger against this world
it is going to be an awful thing.

"This is the place to prepare for the eternal world. When we have passed beyond this mortal vale there will be no further opportunity to get right with God.

"Some try to hide behind others
saying 'I don't do things some professed Christian do.' We are accountable to God for our own conduct,
not that of others.

"People who boast that they will not weaken at the last but die like they lived, usually change their attitude when they come face to face with death. Angels when dying said
"Oh, I would give the world if I had never written 'The Age of Reason'."

King Saul searched for God late in life, unsuccessfully, saying "God hath departed from me and answered me no more." The most horrible thing in this world is to die without God. We cannot say that we have not been warned. Men die presuming upon the love of God. If we miss heaven, we had better never be born."

to be held around a bonfire on the freshmen football field Friday night.
Speakers at the rally will be former Razorback football stars, including Schooner, Hinton, Cole, and others.

handed person's brain may make him

Vast Changes Due for the Railroads

Eastman Foresees Fast and Frequent Service on Branch Lines

ATLANTA, Ga.—(AP)—The new bullet trains are only a forerunner of what is to come, Federal Co-ordinator of Transportation Joseph B. Eastman, said Tuesday, but warned railroads it would be a "blunder" for them to engage in a wholesale competitive fight regardless of needs for this type of service.

Addressing a joint meeting of the Atlanta Freight Bureau and civic clubs, Eastman said the railroads were still the great and necessary transportation system of the country and that new competition all along the line
has brought the railroad inventor back to life.

"For many years railroad passenger service moved over the tracks but otherwise stood still," he said. "Now
a trial wave of improvement seems about to sweep on the scene.

"There are some dangers in the situation. The first, streamlined trains have struck the public fancy. They are a splendid manifestation of a new enterprise. Undoubtedly they have their place. But their first cost is now very high and must come down,
and there is a great amount of passenger service to which those costly trains are not well suited but to which other possible improvements would be well adapted.

"I refer to the development of lightweight, speedy car units operated by low-cost motors and able to provide a cheaper and more flexible and more frequent service on the branch and secondary line."

Warning against "the same old competitive fight" to place rival streamline trains in service, Eastman said
"it would be a blunder of even greater magnitude to neglect the large opportunities which seem to be opening up for improvement of equipment and service in the handling of the freight traffic, which has always been of far more importance from the standpoint of railroad revenues than the passenger traffic."

Air-Conditioning
CHICAGO—(AP)—Railroads of the Western territory will spend more than $12,000,000 for air conditioning to lure passengers next summer. H. G.
Taylor, chairman of the Western Association of Railway Executives, announced that the roads' programs for modernizing trains were practically completed.

Taylor said 1,200 cars of a full quota of 2,500 would be air conditioned. Of these 700 cars would be Pullmans and 500 coaches.

HOLLYWOOD GOSSIP

INTIMATE GLIMPSES AND INSIDE STUFF ON THE MOVIE COLONY

Thomas

—BY DAN THOMAS—

Centers Hounding Nudity Can Find It "Plus" in Gotham Night Clubs

NEW YORK—This is not exactly what you would call a column of movie news—being rather your movie columnist's impressions of Broadway.

After spending a week here, I am firmly convinced that New York has become a 12 clock city. The night life we used to hear so much about now reaches its peak at midnight, or thereabouts.

After-theater crowds drop into night clubs for a couple of drinks and then went their respective ways homeward. As a result, the wee small hours of the morning, when there used to be so much activity, find Broadway almost as deserted as Hollywood Boulevard at the same hour.

All the night clubs here, and there are scores of them, are then, are featuring their midnight shows. Each puts on another show at 2 a. m., but it seldom amounts to much.

Nudity Galore

New York must have two sets of censors—one for the movies and one for the theaters and night clubs. It was the New York censor board that first banned the original version of Mae West's latest film, "Belle of the Nineties."

Yet no other place in the country makes such a play on sex appeal—if you want to call nudity sex appeal—as Manhattan.

The big feature of practically every night club show is its show girls who parade about in costumes so scanty that they really are no costumes at all.

Nancy Makes Good

One of the prettiest show girls at the Paradise Club is bold Nancy Lyons, daughter of the former Senator Lyons of California. Several years ago Nancy took a fling at the movies, but got nowhere.

Then she had a row with her family which ended by Nancy being firmly requested to leave home. For almost a year now she has been on Broadway—and likes it.

"I don't care if I never see California again," she told me the other night between shows. "I'm getting along all right here and eating regularly, which is more than a lot of

Children's Coughs Need Creomulsion

Always get the best, fastest and surest treatment for your child's cough or cold. Prudent mothers more and more are turning to Creomulsion for any cough or cold that starts.

Creomulsion emulsifies crocodine with six other important medicinal elements—it is truly an elegant prescription. It is not a cheap remedy, but contains no narcotics and your own druggist is authorized to refund your money on the spot if your cough or cold is not relieved by Creomulsion. (adv.)

Lift McAdoo Romance Race Ban

Racial barriers that threatened the romance of Allen Wilson McAdoo, right, daughter of U. S. Senator William Gibbs McAdoo of California and granddaughter of Woodrow Wilson, and Rafael Lopez de Onate, above, have been razed, with submission of proof by the film actor, known as Ralph Novarro, that he is of Spanish blood and a U. S. citizen. De Onate produced documents showing that he was not a Filipino, after the county clerk in Riverside, Calif., had raised the question of nationality.

Dead Man Linked In Kidnap Probe

A man dead for six months, shown here in an exclusive photo, taken two years ago, is cast in a leading mystery role in the Lindbergh kidnaping case. He was Isidor Fisch, reputed partner of Bruno Richard Hauptmann in a fur business and the man from whom the kidnaping suspect declares he received the $13,750 ransom found in his garage.

Rivals Barbecue

While attending the Casino de Patee, I couldn't help but compare it to the old-time burlesque shows. Girls in scanty costumes moved continually from table to table selling everything but crackerjack. I don't know how they passed up that.

And no burlesque show ever capitalized more on nudity than does this revue. The only difference is that the show itself is more elaborate, almost a miniature edition of the spectacular Busby Berkeley musical numbers which have become so popular on the screen.

Marvelous Mimic

There's one lad at the Casino de Patee whom you are very apt to see on the screen one of these days. He is 19-year-old Al Bernie. And his impersonations are better than anything of that nature I ever have seen before.

He mimics George Arliss, Maurice Chevalier, Ben Bernie, Eddie Cantor and Rudy Vallee to absolute perfection. And since a number of musical reviews will be made this winter, he is certain to be in demand.

SINCLAIR DEFEATED

Commonwealth party candidate. A prediction of public discontent amounting to "fury" and a promise of recall proceedings in the event Merriam is elected were made today by Sinclair.

"A reactionary administration may be elected in our state," Sinclair acknowledged in a final statement, "but if it is, the people will find that it has no real program and will be confronted with a deficit of more than $100,000,000 next year."

While the former Socialist was thundering his warning at Pasadena, Merriam was smilingly confident of victory.

"The outlook is very encouraging," he said as he voted at Long Beach, "I know California will be loyal today to the principles of American government."

Democrats Win Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—(AP)—Sherman Minton, Democrat, and 100 per cent supporter of President Roosevelt's New Deal program, led Senator Arthur R. Robinson, in Tuesday's senatorial election in Indiana.

In 376 of the state's 3,836 precincts, the vote was:

Minton 103,304
Robinson 90,687

Senator Robinson, bitter foe of the Democratic administration, trailed Minton by 10,766 votes in Marion county, his own home. Outside of Marion county, however, he made a race of it, being only 2,582 votes behind.

Lake county, scene of the late John Dillinger's escape from jail with a wooden gun, gave Minton strong support in the first 20 precincts reported, from them he got 6,250 votes to 3,576 for Robinson.

Early returns indicated some of Indiana's 12 Democratic congressmen seeking re-election were confronted with stiff opposition.

Democrats Take Tennessee

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—(AP)—A Democratic sweep of state-wide offices was indicated Tuesday night in returns from more than half of the voting precincts in Tennessee. However, it appeared certain that Tennessee, the only Southern state to have Republican representatives in congress, would keep its two from the First and Second districts.

Senator Nathan L. Bachman, Democrat, had a pushover in his race with Dr. John R. Neal, Knoxville Independent, for election to the two years remaining of the senate term to which Cordell Hull was elected in 1930. Hull resigned from the senate to become President Roosevelt's secretary of state and Bachman was appointed to serve until Tuesday's election.

Bachman, former state Supreme Court justice and unsuccessful candidate for the senatorial nomination in 1924, won despite that he voted for Dr. Neal in accordance with his custom of always supporting his opponent. The vote from 1,214 out of 2,290 precincts gave Bachman 70,888 and Neal 18,573.

Senator K. D. McKeller, whose Democratic service dates back to 1917, held a commanding lead over his Republican opponent, former Gov. Ben W. Hooper, who had clasped hands with Lewis S. Pope, independent Democratic candidate for governor, in a fusion movement. The veteran senator's strongholds in Memphis and Nashville still were to report. Returns from 1,246 precincts gave McKeller 71,994, Hooper 51,580.

Gov. Hill McAllister, Democrat, seeking re-election to a second two-year term, leaped far ahead of his five-time opponent, Pope, and led the entire ticket. Returns from 1,254 precincts gave McAllister 76,836 and Pope 58,779.

Even a Model Labor War Brings Out Police

Manhattan's "Battle of the Models" over the invasion of the field by society beauties has at last come into the open. The girls who parade clothes before the public to earn a living launched their plecter campaign when society women served as models without pay at a charity fashion show conducted by one of the smart restaurants in E. 53d St. Finally police were called to disperse them. The irate beauties are shown above as they paraded to keep patrons from viewing what they called an "amateurish exhibition." Carrying the white purse is Gertrude Mayer, leader of the professional models.

Washington

Rev. Harrell filled his appointment Sunday at the local Methodist church. This being his last service here before the annual conference in Pine Bluff, November 7. Bro. Harrell's sermon Sunday night was "The Beauty of the Christian Life," a portion of this service was in commemoration of Bro. J. H. Gold, now deceased whose birthday was November 9, also for Jim Dugger who is at present the oldest member of this church and whose birthday was November 2. A beautiful tribute of his life in this church since he was four years of age was given and a basket of beautiful flowers were presented Mr. Dugger as a token of appreciation of his useful life thus far wishing him many more birthdays.

BLACK-DRAUGHT

"Such a Good Laxative," Says Nurse

Writing from her home in Festus, Mo., Mrs. Anna LaPlante says: "I am a practical nurse and I recommend to some of my patients that they take Black-Draught, for it is such a good laxative. I took it for constipation, headache and a dull feeling that I had so much. A few doses of Black-Draught—and I felt just fine."

Because so many people know from having used it that Black-Draught is a good, purely vegetable laxative, millions of packages of it are sold every year.

Memphis to Use TVA Electricity

City Votes Overwhelmingly for Federal Power System

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — (AP) — Memphis vote overwhelmingly Tuesday to allow the city to issue bonds up to $2,000,000 with which to acquire a distributing plant for TVA electric power.

All the 91 precincts in the city showed 32,623 in favor of the bond issue and only 1,858 against it.

The special election was authorized in a city ordinance and immediately Representative E. H. Crump and his powerful Shelby county political organization announced approval of the proposed bond issue.

Rice Comes From Nowhere To Make Title Bid and Future Is Bright

Rice Institute wasn't listed on schedules published throughout the east and middle west this fall.

The Houston entry seemed that unimportant after dropping eight of eleven games in 1933—to Louisiana State, Southern Methodist, Creighton, Texas, Santa Clara, Texas A. & M., Texas Christian, and Baylor.

But that hasn't kept Rice from compiling one of the finest records of the season to date, with smashing victories over Loyola, of New Orleans, Purdue, Southern Methodist, Creighton, and Texas, and a 9-9 tie with Louisiana State.

Right now, Rice looks like the champion of the Southwest Conference, with Texas A. & M., Arkansas, Texas A. & M., Texas Christian, and Baylor yet to be tackled in the completion of its customary arduous 11-game string.

And that isn't all, for Rice loses only two athletes, and Willie Wallace and Johnny McCauley, its backfield stars, return in 1935.

Moreover, Andy Anderson, sports editor of The Houston Press, tells me that if I could see the freshmen who are coming up I'd agree that Rice should be a really great team next autumn.

Thanks, Jack, Old Pal. Jack Meagher, a Notre Dame teammate of Charley Bachman, of Michigan State, and Jimmy Phelan, of Washington, in 1916, left his former assistant, Jimmy Kitts, well equipped with material when he left Rice for Auburn and plenty of headaches.

A big eastern or middle western array could book a splendid attraction by putting Rice on its program for 1935.

Of course, the school doing so might take a pasting, but a squad loses little prestige in being topped by an outstanding outfit. However, after what the Blue and Gray did to Purdue, Southern Methodist, and Texas this autumn, I'm afraid that the Owls will experience difficulty in obtaining good games outside of their own circuit.

Anderson advises me not to overlook Wallace, who trails from Eagle Lake, Texas, and McCauley, who registers from Hubbard, which is where Tris Speaker came from, when it is time to name the NEA All-Americans.

"I've watched Wallace and McCauley all season," says my star Houston operative. "They certainly can pick 'em up and set 'em down. Wallace is a real ball carrier—one of those who have jackrabbit blood in their veins and are as smart as a fox. McCauley is without question the brightest field general in the Southwest Conference. "Click back to Rice's games with Loyola, L. S. U., Purdue, and S. M. U. Then, just to top it off, read the account of the Creighton contest, and how Wallace and McCauley scored two touchdowns in 10 minutes."

Why Not Jan. 1, 1935?

Anderson knows that I'm too lazy to do all that checking back, but I did look up the report of the Rice-Texas game of October 27, when the Owls registered two touchdowns in the last four minutes to come from behind and cop the plums, 20-to-9. "Rice took the lead when Foule shot a sensational pass to Smith, who raced 45 yards for a touchdown," it reads. "Texas started an aerial attack in an effort to regain the upper hand, and Foule went high in the air to intercept Hadlock's pass, and traveled 30 yards for another touchdown. Atkins kicked the extra point." No mention of either Jackrabbit Wallace or McCauley and his tactical brain.

"Some Houston citizens already have gone to the extreme of making Pasadena Rose Bowl reservations for January 1, 1936," concludes Anderson. With a team like that, why not January 1, 1935, Andy?

Columbia has been defeated, Princeton isn't expected to go. The Big Ten still has its thumb down. Not all of the few unbeaten institutions will accept the invitation. Others of them will not be acceptable.

And southern teams are highly regarded out there in the golden gulch.
